1. Gearing calculations are exclusive of current year revenue/loss.

2. Management fees are charged 80% to capital and 20% to revenue. The management fee is based on the lower of the Market Capitalisation and Adjusted NAV. Ongoing charges (OCR) are calculated at the latest published year end date. Ongoing Charges are the total operating expenses, including management fees of the Company expressed as a percentage of the average daily net asset value during the year. The OCR shows the annual percentage reduction in the net asset value as a result of the costs of running the Company. The OCR for the year to 30 September 2025 was 0.90%. The figures are current estimates and may change in the future. Please see the Annual Report and Financial Statements for further information about the calculation of fees.

3. The Company pays two dividends a year.

4. The ordinary share price has been adjusted for dividends paid in the period in GBP and reinvested at the ex-dividend date.

5. The NAV per share is adjusted to show dividends reinvested on the payment date in ordinary shares at their Net Asset Value; to remove the dilution of the exercise of the subscription rights and, to remove any effects from any issuance or repurchase of ordinary shares. This is the metric used by the Company when assessing the investment manager's performance.

6. The Company was restructured on 20 June 2017. The Company carried out a tender offer in response to proposals, to extend the Company's life indefinitely subject to regular tender offers, that were put to shareholders on 22 October 2025 and passed at a General Meeting on 27 November 2025.

Risk Warning Your capital is at risk. You may not get back the full amount you invested. Please note the Risks and Important information at the end of this document, and the Investment Policy and full Risk Warnings set out in the Prospectus, Annual Report and/or Investor Disclosure Document.

Discount Warning The shares of investment trusts may trade at a discount or a premium to Net Asset Value for a variety of reasons including market sentiment and market conditions. On a sale you could realise less than the Net Asset Value and less than you initially invested.

Fund Managers' Comments

Market and sector review

Global equities hit record highs in May, but the rally was narrow and concentrated in the information technology sector, which continues to benefit from the AI buildout theme, with hardware stocks seeing dramatic moves higher on the back of strong Q1 results. Most other sectors saw either modest gains or small declines, despite an overall good earnings season.

Healthcare underperformed the broader market but still finished the month in positive territory. Within the sector, life sciences tools and services, pharmaceuticals, managed care and services were the strongest performing sub-industries, while healthcare equipment, facilities, and distributors saw negative returns.

Two opposing forces shaped equity markets in the month: a fragile de-escalation in the Middle East and renewed focus on inflation across most developed economies. The US/Israel war with Iran, running since late February, had choked the Strait of Hormuz and pushed oil prices to multi-year highs. Through May, growing confidence in a lasting ceasefire and the prospect of reopening the strait drove oil prices down almost 20%, after negotiators reached a 60-day memorandum to extend the truce and begin nuclear talks.

This relief was offset by a difficult inflation picture, especially in the US. Its labour market remained solid though cooling off slightly, but inflation, as measured by the CPI, accelerated to around 3.3% year on year on a sharp gasoline price surge, leaving the Federal Reserve (Fed) reluctant to signal cuts, at least in the near term. As Jerome Powell's term as Chair ended in mid-May, Kevin Warsh is expected to take a more prominent role, adding to policy uncertainty. However, it is clear that the Fed sees inflation as the main risk to the US economy. If the supply-driven energy shock reignites inflation for a prolonged period of time, the next move in benchmark interest rates will likely be higher, not lower, which would then pressure valuations of more economically-sensitive sectors.

Fund performance

The Company's NAV increased by 5.7% in May, ahead of its benchmark, the MSCI All Country World Daily Net Total Return Health Care Index, which was up 2.5% for the month (both figures in sterling terms).

Positive contributors relative to the benchmark in May were Guardant Health, Agilent Technologies and Merck KGaA.

Several favourable developments drove Guardant Health's share price higher over the month. The first was a strong set of Q1 results, with revenue ahead of expectations and full-year guidance raised. The second was FDA approval of its Guardant360 Liquid CDx test which, if it secures so-called Advanced Diagnostic Laboratory Test (ADLT) status, could command a materially higher reimbursement price and lift near and medium-term sales forecasts. The third was the additions of its Shield blood-based colorectal cancer test to the American Cancer Society's screening guidelines, a step that could expand commercial coverage among payers in states that follow those guidelines.

Agilent Technologies and Merck KGaA both posted solid earnings. Improving end markets across the life sciences industry helped, but the larger driver was each company's indirect exposure to the AI infrastructure buildout, through Agilent's applied and chemical markets and Merck KGaA's Electronics segment respectively, both of which support the development and fabrication of semiconductors.

Negative relative contributors in the period under review were iRhythm Technologies, Fresenius and Vaxcyte.

The first two companies struggled in May for various reasons, despite both reporting solid Q1 results: policy uncertainty surrounding Spanish and German hospitals weighed on Fresenius's share price, while iRhythm Technologies was caught in the general selloff of US healthcare equipment stocks.

Finally, Vaxcyte was weak after management set conservative expectations for the Q4 2026 readout of its PCV-31 adult phase 3 trial.

Fund activity

We initiated positions in Insmid and Edwards Lifesciences during the month.

The pullback in Insmid's share price offered an attractive entry point in this biotechnology company focussing on respiratory diseases. We believe the market underappreciates both the potential for multi-billion dollar sales of its main commercial assets as well as the strength of its pipeline.

Edwards Lifesciences is a leader in healthcare equipment for structural heart diseases. The company has been executing well and we see upside to sales and earnings estimates, driven by competitive share gains and recently launched products.

The new additions were partially funded by exiting the positions in ICON, Zealand Pharma and Fresenius.

Outlook

While the healthcare sector posted positive returns in May, the broader market's gains continued to be driven by investors' preference for AI-exposed companies. We view healthcare's valuations as disconnected from its strong fundamentals and on that basis we believe the sector offers an attractive risk/reward profile. The case is reinforced by easing policy risks and the sector's resilient qualities which should prove increasingly valuable as the odds of the global economy slipping into stagflation begin to rise.

Performance relates to past returns and is not a reliable indicator of future returns.

It should not be assumed that recommendations made in future will be profitable or will equal performance of the securities in this document. A list of all recommendations made within the immediately preceding 12 months is available upon request.

Risks

- Investors' capital is at risk and there is no guarantee the Company will achieve its objective.
- Past performance is not a reliable guide to future performance.
- The value of investments may go down as well as up.
- Investors might get back less than they originally invested.
- The value of an investment's assets may be affected by a variety of uncertainties such as (but not limited to): (i) international political developments; (ii) market sentiment; and (iii) economic conditions.
- The shares of the Company may trade at a discount or a premium to Net Asset Value.
- The Company may use derivatives which carry the risk of reduced liquidity, substantial loss and increased volatility in adverse market conditions.
- The Company invests in assets denominated in currencies other than the Company's base currency and changes in exchange rates may have a negative impact on the value of the Company's investments.
- The Company invests in a concentrated number of companies based in one sector. This focused strategy can lead to significant losses. The Company may be less diversified than other investment companies.
- The Company may invest in emerging markets where there is a greater risk of volatility than developed economies, for example due to political and economic uncertainties and restrictions on foreign investment. Emerging markets are typically less liquid than developed economies which may result in large price movements to the Company.

Glossary

Active Share, a measure of how actively a portfolio is managed, is the percentage of the portfolio that differs from its benchmark. It is calculated by deducting from 100 the percentage of the portfolio that overlaps with the benchmark. An active share of 100 indicates no overlap with the benchmark and an active share of zero indicates a portfolio that tracks the benchmark.

Alpha is the excess return on an investment in the Company compared to the benchmark and can be used as a measure of performance, where the benchmark is considered to represent the market's movement as a whole.

Derivatives are instruments whose value is linked to another investment, or to the performance of a stock exchange or to some other variable factor, such as interest rates.

Discount is where the share price of an investment company is lower than the net asset value per share.

Discrete Performance is the percentage performance of an investment over specific, defined time periods.

Emerging markets are countries that are progressing toward becoming advanced, usually shown by some development in financial markets, the existence of some form of stock exchange and a regulatory body.

Gearing is all external borrowings of the Company and any subsidiaries.

Management Fee is the entitlement of the Investment Manager to an annual management fee. Please see the Explanation of Fee Arrangements available on the Company's website for further information, found at: <https://www.polarcapitalglobalhealthcaretrust.co.uk/Key-Information/#/Overview>

"NAV" or "Net Asset Value" has the value of all assets of the Company less liabilities to creditors (including provisions for such liabilities) determined in accordance with the Company's accounting policies, applicable accounting standards and the Company's constitution.

Ongoing Charges are the measure of what it costs to run the Company, including the Management Fee and other operating costs; these costs are not passed on to investors in the price they pay for the shares of the Company.

Premium is where the share price of an investment company is higher than the net asset value per share.
